

Commas can be used to separate items in a list.

Sammy the street dog loved to eat bread, meat and bones.

In your sentence the last item, before the and doesn't need a comma.

I have missed some commas out of my sentences. Find the missing commas and write them in using a coloured pencil.

1. Sammy was very hungry so for breakfast he ate an enormous pie a biscuit and some beef.
2. At lunch time Sammy ate some chicken pork and more biscuits.

3. At dinner time Sammy ate some beef some pork and another pie.

Think of some food you think Sammy might like to eat and make a list of the food. Then write a sentence using commas in a list.

For example:

chicken
pies bread biscuits

Sammy ate some chicken, pies, bread and some biscuits for his lunch.

Write 5 sentences about the food you think Sammy might like to eat. Make a list first then write your sentences using commas in your book.
