

How to be a Man on the Moon

If you want to be a man on the moon you must be extremely responsible. Being prompt each morning is vital and you must never miss a day at work. Do you think you would be up to the task?

If so here is what being a man on the moon may involve.

Cleaning

You must keep the moon tidy as quite often astronauts drop sweet packets and cans. Usually you would use a moon vacuum to get rid of the dust and dirt. It is crucial that you clean out the craters daily and check to make sure that there is nothing left inside them each night.

Entertaining tourists

Each afternoon tourist spaceships begin to arrive from Earth. It would be part of your job to entertain them and give them something to photograph. Sometimes, this may involve doing exciting gymnastics such as somersaults, handstands and even high moon jumps. Sometimes this can take as long as two hours.

Occasionally, the tourist' spaceships will land on the moon and when they do you must give them a guided tour. Ensuring you show the guests all of the different areas and tell them facts along the way.

Selling souvenirs

You must be particularly good with money as you will need to set up a gift shop. As there is no wi-fi on the moon you can't use internet banking and you would have to add up all the numbers in your head. You may choose to sell things such as postcards, pencils, mugs and small statues of the moon. However you may choose to sell something even more exciting, that would be up to you.

Aliens

When tourists ask you about aliens it is hugely important that you tell them the truth and try not to exaggerate the truth. There are no aliens! It is your job to make sure that not only the tourists but people back on earth know that they just don't exist.

Travel

What could you write here?

After hearing all of this information do you really think that you would be suited to work on the moon? If so please contact us to apply for the job.